

CLEMSON EMPLOYEE REFERRAL PROGRAM

Clemson University's employee referral program will launch January 17, 2017. The employee referral program will facilitate the hiring of talented individuals to the University by allowing its existing faculty and staff to act as talent scouts and University ambassadors.

How does the employee referral program work?

Clemson University's existing faculty and staff act as talent scouts and ambassadors for the University. In the event that an eligible Clemson employee is instrumental in the University securing a new hire, that employee will be rewarded. For each referral that gets hired into an FTE position, the referring employee will receive a $500 reward.

How can Clemson employees enroll in the employee referral program?

The electronic enrollment site will become available prior to January 17, 2017. Watch for future communication from the Office of Human Resources.

How will Clemson employees be able to use social media to improve their referrals?

Clemson University's employee referral program allows existing University faculty and staff to send private job invitations and automatically mass share jobs via social networks. Employees will be able to connect their social media accounts to the online employee referral program to take advantage of its automated services, making it easy for Clemson employees to recognize friends who are good matches for positions. Also, an "Auto Share" option will automatically send preset messages to friends who match new position job descriptions.
