

For persons currently in the US in another nonimmigrant status, there are two ways to obtain J-1 status:

1. You may obtain a J-1 visa via travel abroad.
2. You may obtain a J-1 status by applying to the US Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) for a change of status (COS) without departing the US.

Both methods require that you demonstrate that you intend to leave the US after completing your program of study or do not plan to stay in the US indefinitely.

Part III. Important Notes

- We recommend that you schedule an appointment with an International Service Advisor to review your completed application before filing it with the USCIS.
- Estimated processing time for USCIS is from two to six months.
- You will receive an I-797 receipt notice from the USCIS approximately one month after filing your application. You may check the status of your application on-line using the receipt number found on the Form I-797, Receipt Notice.
- If you receive a Request for Further Evidence (RFE) from the USCIS, consult with IS and/or your immigration attorney before responding.
- You may not attend school while your change of status application is pending at USCIS. Furthermore, you may not begin an assistantship, or engage in on-campus or off-campus employment of any kind until your change of status has been approved by the USCIS.
- After a change of status from within in the US, you may need to obtain a new visa stamp for your new status on your next trip abroad. This will necessitate a visit to a US embassy or consulate during that trip. Consult with IS about this process well before your trip.
- International Services would like to remind students that a change of status application is the responsibility of the applicant. IS has provided the above information as a courtesy and recommends that persons with complex applications consult a competent immigration attorney before proceeding.
