Description: This series contains the speeches and writings produced by Robert F. Poole. Included are the speeches Poole delivered as President of Clemson College, articles that Poole wrote during his academic career, and the master's thesis that Poole wrote in 1917. In the series are found copies of speeches that Poole delivered to faculty, cadets, alumni, and civic organizations such as Rotary, Kiwanis, and American Legion. The topics of most speeches concern agricultural production, textile development, and educational improvements in South Carolina. Many of the speeches were later published in newspapers and journals.

The present chronological order of the series reflects the order in which the speeches were found at the time of processing.
