Abstract:	The Quattlebaums were German Protestant pioneers who helped settle the "Dutch Fork" area of South Carolina (present Lexington and Newberry Counties) in the 1760's. The family has provided South Carolina with political leaders, engineers, soldiers, teachers, farmers, and executives for more than 200 years. Four generations of the Quattlebaum family are represented in this collection. The Quattlebaum Papers consist primarily of correspondence, reports, and research relating to Paul Quattlebaum's career as a utility executive, his service as a state senator from Horry County, and his activity as a genealogist and historian. Also included in this collection are a group of letters and documents from General Paul Quattlebaum related primarily to family matters, a series of business records and correspondence from Conway attorney Cephas Perry Quattlebaum and material from Paul Quattlebaum Jr. related to his service on the Clemson Board of Trustees. The Quattlebaum Papers hold research potential in the areas of twentieth-century South Carolina politics, Peedee area and Horry County history, and South Carolina genealogy.

Biographical

General Paul Quattlebaum was born July 8, 1812, in Lexington District, South Carolina, the son of Captain John and Metee Burkett Quattlebaum. Educated in local schools, at the age of eighteen he married Sarah Caroline Jones Prothro of Edgefield District. He served as an officer in the Seminole War of 1835-36, and upon returning home was commissioned colonel and later brigadier general in the South Carolina Militia. An active planter and industrialist, Quattlebaum's ventures included lumber and flour mills and a rifle factory. He served in the South Carolina House of Representatives (1840-44), the State Senate (1848-52), and was a signer of the Ordinance of Secession. General Paul Quattlebaum died October 18, 1890.

Among his several surviving children was Cephas Perry Quattlebaum. Cephas Perry Quattlebaum was born in Lexington District, South Carolina, on May 19, 1851. He received his early education from private tutors and read law in the office of Major H. A. Meetze, a local attorney. Gaining admittance to the South Carolina Bar in 1874, he soon moved to Conwayborough (now Conway), South Carolina and began practicing law in partnership with W. D. Johnson and J. Monroe Johnson. He took an active part as a "Red Shirt" in the gubernatorial campaign of 1876 and organized a rifle club in Horry County. Heavily involved in fraternal organizations and civic affairs, Cephas Perry Quattlebaum led the movement for the incorporation of the town of Conway in 1898 and served as its first mayor. He married Janette Taylor McQueen (1852-1927) of Chesterfield County, South Carolina, on December 23, 1884. His oldest child, Paul, was born two years later. Cephas Perry Quattlebaum died July 20, 1929.

Paul Quattlebaum was born February 25, 1886, at Conway, South Carolina. He attended private schools and received a Bachelor of Science degree in electrical and mechanical engineering from Clemson Agricultural College in 1907. While at Clemson, Quattlebaum served as president of the Calhoun Literary Society, treasurer of the Y.M.C.A., secretary of the college Sunday School, and exchange editor of The Tiger.

Following graduation Quattlebaum returned to Conway and embarked on careers in business and politics. He organized the Conway Light and Power Company in 1907 and subsequently founded the Quattlebaum Ice Company (1912) and the Quattlebaum Light and Ice Company (1915), working as chief executive of this firm until his retirement in 1930. Paul Quattlebaum represented Horry County in the South Carolina Senate from 1935 to 1944. He sat on various Senate committees and took a personal interest in the oversight of the State Historical Commission, now known as the South Carolina Department of Archives and History. Agitation by Senator Quattlebaum to enhance the facilities of the Medical College of South Carolina resulted in the dramatic growth of that school. He followed politics avidly throughout his life and after his retirement became involved in the Eisenhower presidential campaign of 1952.

After leaving the Senate Quattlebaum focused his efforts on historical and genealogical research and church and civic affairs. His publishing credits include a massive genealogical project titled Quattlebaum: A Palatine Family in South Carolina which appeared in the South Carolina Historical and Genealogical Magazine (1947-48) and The Land Called Chicora (1956), a scholarly monograph dealing with early European settlements on the South Carolina coast. His civic interests involved serving on the Board of Trustees of Queens College (1930-1964), being President of the Conway Chamber of Commerce (1935-36; 1944-45), President of the Conway Lions Club (1956-57), and life member of the Horry County Library Commission. A lifelong Presbyterian, Paul Quattlebaum was a ruling elder of Kingston Presbyterian Church (1907-64) in Conway and devoted himself to local, state, and denomination-wide church activities.

Paul Quattlebaum married Sue Martin of Marion, South Carolina, November 22, 1911. They had four children: Paul, Jr., Laura Janette, Katherine McQueen, and Sue Martin. He died August 9, 1964.

Paul Quattlebaum, Jr. was born September 14, 1912 in Conway, South Carolina. He attended Clemson College and graduated in 1933 with a degree in electrical engineering. Moving to Charleston after graduation, Paul managed a retail appliance store until called to military service in 1942. In 1947 Paul was a member of the South Carolina Education Survey Committee. During the post war years, he was active in numerous fraternal, civic and business organizations including the Chamber of Commerce where he was chair of the military affairs committee during a period of rapid expansion of military bases in the Charleston area. In 1960 he sold his appliance business and became director of the South Carolina Field Office of the United States Department of Commerce for almost twenty years. That same year, he was elected by the General Assembly to become a member of the Board of Trustees of Clemson. Upon the completion of his fifth term as an elected trustee on January 1, 1980, he was awarded the title Trustee Emeritus. Paul Quattlebaum continued to loyally serve Clemson University for over the next twenty years, attending Board meetings and University events for years until near his death on May 15, 2003.

Paul Quattlebaum Jr. married Margaret Lillian Hass of Charleston in 1937 with whom he raised three daughters: Patricia Sue Quattlebaum, Margaret Quattlebaum Hahn, and the Rev. Laura Quattlebaum. After the death of Margaret Quattlebaum in 1975 Paul married Verbia Elane Arnold in 1976.

Scope and Contents

The Quattlebaum Papers consist primarily of correspondence and business records of Cephas Perry Quattlebaum (1851-1929) and the correspondence, reports, and research relating to Paul Quattlebaum's (1886-1964) career as a utility executive, his service as a state senator from Horry County, and his activity as a genealogist and historian. Also included in this collection are a group of letters and documents from General Paul Quattlebaum (1812-1890) related primarily to family matters. There are also papers related to Paul Quattlebaum, Jr.'s (1912-2003) service on the Board of Trustees of Clemson University. The Quattlebaum Papers hold research potential in the areas of twentieth-century South Carolina politics, Peedee area and Horry County history, and South Carolina genealogy.

- 14 Richard Champion Series, 1952-1980
- 15 German Immigration Series, 1972-1982
- 16 Northeast Corner of South Carolina Series, 1959, undated
- 17 Paul Quattlebaum Jr. Series, 1933-2003

The correspondence, documents, and records from the first series is fragmentary. The material from General Paul Quattlebaum consists of several letters to and from various Confederate government officials and military officers attempting to gain promotions for his sons, Theodore and Edmund. This series includes a long letter from James Henry Hammond to General Quattlebaum concerning Confederate politics.

The two Cephas Perry Quattlebaum series contain business records and correspondence relating to his Conway, South Carolina law practice, including the scattered records of several local businesses which passed into the receivership of Quattlebaum's law firm. There is also some correspondence with family and friends. The series is arranged chronologically.

The Clemson College series documents certain aspects of Paul Quattlebaum's career as a cadet. His activity in the Calhoun Literary Society and the YMCA represent the major topics in this small series.

The Quattlebaum Light and Ice Company series provides a picture of the operations of a locally-owned, family operated utility business in early twentieth-century South Carolina. These alphabetically-arranged files contain reference material and correspondence between Paul Quattlebaum and his customers and suppliers. This correspondence documents Paul Quattlebaum's executive traits of tenacity, diplomacy, and shrewd business judgment. There is some correspondence related to the Santee-Cooper project.

The Personal Series follows the life of Paul Quattlebaum as private citizen. It is composed chiefly of correspondence dating from the mid-1930's until his death in 1964. This correspondence documents Quattlebaum's efforts in civic and church affairs. His lifelong interest in state and national politics is reflected in many letters to and from old political colleagues. This series also holds personal family correspondence and material relating to medical and financial matters.

The Senate Series details Paul Quattlebaum's nine year tenure in the South Carolina State Senate. In addition to correspondence from constituents, politicians, and government officials, the series also holds reference material such as reports and informational memoranda. The correspondence documents the inner workings of state politics and also illuminates the internal operations of local government in Horry County. The various Horry County files, along with folders titled "Magistrates," "Sheriff," and "Delegation," help provide a glimpse of county government in the pre-Home Rule years of South Carolina. Quattlebaum's prominence in Horry politics led to his appointment as chairman of the Horry County Council of Defense, a local agency of the state-wide civil defense effort. His activity in this role is documented in the Horry County Civil Defense Series.

Although Paul Quattlebaum ended his Senate career in 1945, he remained a keen student of politics. A conservative Democrat, Quattlebaum decried the Truman administration's stance regarding national defense, organized labor, and Civil Rights. He energetically supported the candidacy of Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1952 and helped establish a "South Carolinians for Eisenhower" movement. During this campaign Quattlebaum ran unsuccessfully as an independent presidential elector. The Eisenhower for President Campaign Series records Quattlebaum's efforts in the 1952 election. This small series gives evidence of changing political allegiances in South Carolina and the weakening of the "Solid South" in national politics.

Paul Quattlebaum's love for South Carolina was only exceeded by love for his family. His achievements in genealogical and historical research are documented in two separate series. A Palatine Family in South Carolina and Related Materials reveals Quattlebaum's methodical genealogical research in this family history. The correspondence and reference material in this series supply a wealth of information on the German Protestant pioneers of the South Carolina midlands. The Land Called Chicora and Related Materials Series holds correspondence and research notes dealing with early European settlements on the South Carolina coast. These files furnish a potentially rich source of information for students of American frontier history. Although the primary focus of this series is research material directly related to Quattlebaum's 1956 book, The Land Called Chicora, the series also contains numerous folders pertaining to the history of the South Carolina Low Country and miscellaneous genealogical inquiries.

As a genealogist Paul Quattlebaum appreciated the need to record vital information on individuals and families. The Horry County Families Series represents his sixteen year effort in collecting obituary notices of residents of Horry County. The genealogical expertise of Paul Quattlebaum was also sought after by Emily Bellinger Reynolds and Joan Reynolds Faunt as they compiled their Biographical Directory of the Senate of the State of South Carolina, 1776-1964. The Senatorial Research Committee Series documents Quattlebaum's contributions to this volume.

The Richard Champion Series, is a manuscript volume compiled by Paul Quattlebaum in 1956. Richard Champion, a noted potter and merchant from Bristol, England, lived briefly in South Carolina in the late eighteenth-century. Paul Quattlebaum's cousin, W. Dan Quattlebaum, collected Champion porcelain and persuaded Paul Quattlebaum to write a biographical sketch of Champion.

The German Immigration Series consists of a variety of research materials related to the settlement in South Carolina by German speaking immigrants as well as their accomplishments, community and religious establishments collected by Paul Quattlebaum, Jr. It is uncertain whether any publication resulted from this research. Some material from his father's research on A Palatine Family in South Carolina is also included.

The Northeast Corner of South Carolina Series consists of Paul Quattlebaum's research material and manuscript drafts titled "The Northeast Corner of South Carolina or Old Georgetown District" dated during 1959. The project was discontinued after four chapters and apparently was never published.

The Paul Quattlebaum Jr. Series, 1933-2003, consists almost exclusively of material about Clemson University, primarily related to Paul Quattlebaum Jr.'s service on the Board of Trustees. The bulk of the Trustee papers are from the 1995-2001 when, as a Trustee Emeritus, he continued to participate in Board activities.

Because Paul Quattlebaum did not neatly segment his different political, historical and personal interests, there exists some overlapping of material in the twelve series. Specifically, the Personal Series and the Chicora series both contain folders related to historical research; also, correspondence between Quattlebaum and notable political figures such as James F. Byrnes, Olin D. Johnston, Burnet R. Maybank, and Strom Thurmond can be found in both the Senate Series and the Personal Series. Processing notes for most of the series are available in the reference file.

Series 1: General Paul Quattlebaum, 1870-1890

Physical Description: 0.15 Cubic Feet

Series Description

This series consists of fragmentary correspondence and documents from family members. Most of the correspondence is between General Paul Quattlebaum (1812-1890) and his son Cephas during the decades after the Civil War. There are a few letters between Quattlebaum and various Confederate government officials and military officers concerning attempts to secure promotions for two of his sons in the Confederate Army, Theodore Adolphus Quattlebaum (1842-1865) and Edwin Ruffin Quattlebaum (1844-1906). Notable correspondents include James Henry Hammond, Governor M. L. Bonham of South Carolina, and General James Conner. There is a folder documenting the settlement of the estate of John Quattlebaum, Paul's father, during the 1850s; two criminal incitements against slaves, 1853 and 1857; a letter from the political operative, Armistead Burk, 1848; and a financial note from John Taylor to Robert F. Withers, 1817.

Biographical Note

General Paul Quattlebaum was born July 8, 1812, in Lexington District, South Carolina, the son of Captain John and Metee Burkett Quattlebaum. Educated in local schools, at the age of eighteen he married Sarah Caroline Jones Prothro of Edgefield District. Series 2: Cephas Perry Quattlebaum, 1859-1928

Physical Description: 3.5 Cubic Feet

Series Description

This series has correspondence about Cephas Perry Quattlebaum's years as a practicing attorney in Conway, South Carolina, first in partnership with W.D. and J. Monroe Johnson and later on his own. This correspondence includes letters from farmers, lumbermen, and others suffering from the effects of the late nineteenth century agricultural depression in the South Carolina Low Country. It documents real estate activity and Quattlebaum's role in collecting judgments for overdue bills in the Conway area. They also document Quattlebaum's service as local attorney for the Atlantic Coast Line and his unsuccessful run for the office of Horry County Solicitor in 1908.

Quattlebaum was active in local politics, serving as Conway's first mayor in 1898. He was a conservative Democrat and opposed the Tillman wing of the party. There are campaign flyers, voting tallies, and other material related to the elections of 1892 and 1894. He corresponded occasionally with South Carolina Governor Cole Blease and Congressman J. Edwin Ellerbe. There are also some correspondence with family members, particularly his wife Janette, local fraternal lodge officials, and other Low Country lawyers and businessmen. Of particular note is the personal correspondence from the Reconstruction period including information related to the creation of militia companies after the disputed 1876 Hampton-Chamberlain gubernatorial election.

Series 3: Cephas Perry Quattlebaum, Miscellaneous Business Records, 1860-1919

Physical Description: 7 Cubic Feet (33 volumes)

Series Description

This series contains business records of C.P. Quattlebaum's law practice and a variety of other records acquired or produced during his career as a lawyer in Horry County. Quattlebaum formed a number of partnerships with W.D and J.M. Johnson, 1874-1903 (with J.W. Johnson joining the firm at some point), with J.M. Johnson, 1901-1913, with C.E. St. Amaid, 1907-1908, and in sole proprietorship, 1915-1919. The ledgers list expenses incurred by the partners as well as fees charged to clients. There is also a letterpress book, 1883-1892, containing copies of correspondence and legal documents prepared by Quattlebaum.

Quattlebaum acquired a variety of records documenting the operations of several general merchandise stores in Horry County: Todd and Causey, E.L. Lewis, Joseph Todd Company, J. Causey and Company, and M.L. Beaty He served as the executor of the estate of E.L. Lewis, 1882-1892.

The inventory and appraisal ledger for the estate of E.L. Lewis, 1887-1890, lists the goods in his stores, the accounts receivable and payable, and the amounts obtained from the sale of his real estate. The Administrator's Ledger, 1882-1892, lists the accounts receivable to the estate and its final disposition. There is also an estate administrator's ledger for the estate of Isaac T. Lewis, 1860-1893, which Quattlebaum also settled as part of the E.T. Lewis estate. The accounts receivable journals for the Lewisville and Union stores list amounts debited and credited along with items purchased and commodities credited. There is a ledger, 1882-1887, listing the number of bales of cotton, barrels of turpentine and rosin, and other goods shipped by steamer. It includes the steamer's name, date of shipment, and person whose account was credited.

There are four volumes from a store managed by Mrs. M.B. Beaty: a daybook, 1881-1888, lists the store's daily transactions; two ledgers list purchases and amounts of goods received and credited to accounts, 1892-1901; and a cash disbursements ledger, 1899-1902.

Another series of records document transactions at the Todd and Causey, Joseph Todd, and Causey and Company stores which may be related. Records consist of one accounts receivable ledger, 1871-1872, and a volume, 1871-1872, listing disbursements for turpentine, and an inventory of the store's stock of goods at the time of the dissolution of the firm. Four volumes document the operations of the Joseph Todd Store in Toddsville, Horry County, South Carolina, 1877-1883. The three daybooks list the store's transactions on a day-by-day basis. The accounts receivable ledger provides information on individual accounts listing what was purchased. Quattlebaum served as bankruptcy trustee for J.(ohn) Causey and Co. in 1902 and may have obtained the earlier volumes at that time. There is an accounts receivable ledger, 1899-1902 and a cashbook, 1899-1902 for the J. Causey store.

The series also contains three unrelated volumes which came in to Quattlebaum's possession. There is a volume, 1900-1902, of the Horry County Commission of the South Carolina Interstate West Indian Exposition of which Quattlebaum was a commissioner. It lists items provided by Horry County citizens for the Exposition and expenses incurred. There is a volume, 1912-1915, listing the names of members and dues paid by the local chapter of the fraternal order, the Knights of Honor, of which Quattlebaum was a member. There is a county court docket, 1893-1903, with criminal and civil proceedings which may have been created by a Justice Singleton. It lists date, offense/cause of action, witnesses, attorneys, jurors, verdict and disposition of the case. There is also a docket of C.P. Quattlebaum, 1891-1918. Finally there is a ship's log for the J.R. Floyd, 1876.

Series 4: Paul Quattlebaum, Clemson College, 1903-1907

Physical Description: 0.15 Cubic Feet

Series Description

This series consists of scattered items related to Paul Quattlebaum's career as a cadet at Clemson, 1903-1907. It contains correspondence with his parents and sister and material primarily related to the Calhoun Literary Society and the Clemson College YMCA. The family correspondence details life at Clemson as well as family activities. The Calhoun Literary Society material includes its constitution and by-laws, correspondence related to the organization's activities, and speeches which Quattlebaum prepared for debate. The YMCA material includes correspondence to Quattlebaum in his capacity as a member of this organization and printed programs, announcements, and other items. There is also a notebook used by Quattlebaum for a civil engineering course in surveying.

Series 5: Paul Quattlebaum, Quattlebaum Light and Ice Company

Physical Description: 1 Cubic Feet

Series Description

The Quattlebaum Light and Ice Company series provides a picture of the operations of a locally-owned, family operated utility business in early twentieth-century South Carolina and documents early efforts to provide commercial and residential electric service in South Carolina. This correspondence documents Paul Quattlebaum's executive traits of tenacity, diplomacy, and shrewd business judgment.

Established in Conway, South Carolina in 1915, the Quattlebaum Light and Ice Company evolved from two earlier family enterprises, the Conway Light and Power Company (1907) and the Quattlebaum Ice Company (1912). The company remained under control of the Quattlebaum family until it was sold to the General Water Works and Electric Corporation of Fort Worth, Texas, in 1929. This series provides evidence of day-to-day transactions with customers and suppliers, including the sale of light and power service, domestic coal sales, ice sales, and house wiring service. Financial records such as audit reports and tax statements are also included in this series. There is also some correspondence during the 1920's concerning the development of the Santee-Cooper power project.

Arrangement

The files are arranged alphabetically by customer or supplier; the internal organization of each folder is chronological.

Series 6: Paul Quattlebaum, Personal, 1907-1963

Physical Description: 4.5 Cubic Feet

Series Description

The Personal Series holds correspondence which details Paul Quattlebaum's business, family, civic, church, and avocational interests. The series contains private letters from Quattlebaum's senatorial years (1935-1944) and documents fully his life from 1945 to 1964. Included in this material are Quattlebaum's activities as civic club officer, trustee of Queen's College, Charlotte, N. C., and Ruling Elder of Kingston Presbyterian Church in Conway, S. C. Although he retired from public life in 1945, Quattlebaum retained an avid interest in state and national politics, and kept up a lively correspondence with his former colleagues. He also communicated regularly with various government officials, genealogists, family members, and myriad acquaintances. Prominent correspondents include Leonardo Andrea, Edgar A.

Brown, James F. Byrnes, James H. Hammond, William P. Jacobs, Olin D. Johnston, J. C. Littlejohn, Kenneth Lynch, John C. McMillan, Burnet R. Maybank, Robert F. Poole, Frank A. Thompson, J. Strom Thurmond, and E. Craig Wall. Letters from Littlejohn and Poole are located in the Clemson College folders, and the Lynch correspondence is filed under Medical College of South Carolina.

Series 7: Paul Quattlebaum, Senate, 1936-1945

Physical Description: 6 Cubic Feet

Series Description

This series contains correspondence, memoranda, and reports pertaining to Paul Quattlebaum's nine year tenure in the South Carolina Senate. Paul Quattlebaum entered the Senate in the summer of 1935 to fill out the unexpired term of deceased Horry Senator H. Kemper Cooke. Quattlebaum successfully stood for re-election for a full four-year term in 1936 and was subsequently returned to the Senate in 1940. He worked untiringly to enhance the Horry County highway network and took an active interest in agricultural affairs, the Medical College of South Carolina, the Santee-Cooper hydroelectric project, and the State Historical Commission. Conway attorney Frank A. Thompson defeated Quattlebaum in his third bid for re-election in the summer of 1944.

This series consists primarily of correspondence from constituents, Horry County public officials, state government personnel, and other senators. The correspondence documents the inner workings of state politics and also illuminates the internal operations of local government in Horry County. The various Horry County files, along with folders titled "Magistrates," "Sheriff," and "Delegation," help provide a glimpse of county government in the pre-Home Rule years of South Carolina. Notable correspondents include Solomon Blatt, Edgar A. Brown, James F. Byrnes, J. Emile Harley, Richard M. Jeffries, Olin D. Johnston, John L. McMillan, Burnet R. Maybank, Cotesworth P. Means, Ellison D. Smith, J. Strom Thurmond, George Bell Timmerman and Ransome J. Williams.

Arrangement

The files are organized alphabetically by subject and/or correspondent. The internal arrangement of each folder is chronological. Documents relating to state agencies are located alphabetically under "South Carolina"; e.g., material on the State Public Service Commission is found in a folder titled "S. C. State Public Service Commission."

Series 8: Paul Quattlebaum, Horry County Civil Defense, 1941-1945

Physical Description: 1.5 Cubic Feet

Series Description

This series is composed of correspondence, memoranda, and reports of the Horry County Council of Defense. State Senator Paul Quattlebaum chaired this group during World War II. Organized in January, 1941, the Horry County Council of Defense helped coordinate the civilian war effort in that county. This series documents civil defense activities such as rationing, blackouts and shore lighting, disaster and evacuation plans, and the provision of emergency medical services. The series also contains a folder dealing with espionage surveillance, entitled "W. H. Schreck." Most of the memoranda are routine. G. Heyward Mahon, Director of the South Carolina Council of Defense, is Paul Quattlebaum's primary correspondent.

Arrangement

The files are organized alphabetically by subject; the internal arrangement of each folder is chronological.

Series 9: Paul Quattlebaum, Eisenhower For President Campaign, 1951-1956

Physical Description: 0.15 Cubic Feet

Series Description

The Eisenhower for President Campaign Series consists of correspondence, brochures, and clippings concerning the 1952 presidential campaign in South Carolina. The 1952 election between Stevenson and Eisenhower instigated political discord in the South Carolina Democratic Party. Although a lifelong Democrat, Paul Quattlebaum participated enthusiastically in Eisenhower's campaign. This series documents changing political attitudes and allegiances in South Carolina politics and provides background material on the twentieth-century resurgence of the Republican Party in South Carolina.

The correspondence deals mainly with political organizing and electioneering. It charts the evolution of the "South Carolinians for Eisenhower" movement from antecedent organizations such as the Charleston County Citizens League and the Citizens Grass Roots Crusade. Numerous letters pertain to Quattlebaum's role as an independent presidential elector. Notable correspondents include Edgar A. Brown, James F. Byrnes, William A. Kimbel, Douglas McKay, and Stanley Morse.

Arrangement

The correspondence files are organized alphabetically, and each alphabetical category is arranged chronologically. Clippings, pamphlets, petitions, and form letters are in separate folders following the correspondence.

Series 10: Paul Quattlebaum, A Palatine Family in South Carolina and Related Materials, 1887-1963, undated

Physical Description: 4 Cubic Feet

Series Description

This series consists of genealogical research files, family correspondence, research notes, and manuscript drafts pertaining to the publication of the Quattlebaum family genealogy. Paul Quattlebaum was an avid history and genealogy buff. He began investigating his family history in 1933, and his efforts resulted in the publication of Quattlebaum: A Palatine Family in South Carolina in the South Carolina Historical and Genealogical Magazine (vols. 48 and 49) in a serialized format over a two-year period. This article traces the family's first appearance in North America in 1736 and documents the migrations of subsequent generations to South Carolina and other southern states. Quattlebaum's methodical research produced a steady flow of inquiries and correspondence with relatives throughout the United States. An outgrowth of Quattlebaum's research was the formation of the Quattlebaum Clan, Inc., which organized family reunions.

The genealogical files consist of form-letter inquiries, correspondence, and clippings dealing with specific members of the family tree. The correspondence files cover more general family matters and also contain photocopies of research materials such as maps and deeds. Important correspondents include South Carolina historians J. Harold Easterby, Anne King Gregorie, and A. S. Salley. Additional Quattlebaum family information can be found in M. M. Quattlebaum's Quattlebaum Family History (1950), located in Clemson University Library's Special Collections.

Arrangement

The research files are organized by Quattlebaum family branches as follows: Johannes/John line; Johannes/George line; Peter line; and Matthias line. Each folder corresponds to an individual with an assigned reference number. In some instances information on descendants of a particular person may be included in the folder which bears that person's name. This arrangement follows exactly the published genealogy of the Quattlebaum family which appeared in the South Carolina Historical and Genealogical Magazine in 1947 and 1948. A photocopy of the published article and a classified index of this genealogy are located in folder #1 and serve as finding aids. The family correspondence files are arranged alphabetically by correspondent or subject, and each folder is organized chronologically. Miscellaneous research notes and two drafts of the manuscript are found at the end of the series.

Series 11: Paul Quattlebaum, The Land Called Chicora and Related Materials

Series Description

The Land Called Chicora and Related Materials series is composed of research notes, correspondence, and manuscript drafts relating to Paul Quattlebaum's book, The Land Called Chicora. This series also contains material dealing with general South Carolina history as well as genealogically-related correspondence.

The publication of The Land Called Chicora: The Carolinas Under Spanish Rule with French Intrusions, 1520-1670 by the University of Florida Press in 1956 was the culmination of over twenty years research by Paul Quattlebaum. The book details early European exploration and abortive attempts at settlement along the South Carolina coast prior to the coming of the English in 1670. In writing this book Quattlebaum compiled research from libraries and archives in North America and Europe. He maintained extensive correspondence with various historians, curators, archivists, and antiquarians. As his reputation as a local historian grew, Quattlebaum received numerous genealogical inquiries pertaining to South Carolina and Horry County. In some instances this genealogical correspondence relates to individuals in the Horry County Families series in the Quattlebaum Papers. Well known correspondents in the Chicora series include A. M. Huntington, Bernard Baruch, and South Carolina historians Robert Meriwether, Chapman J. Milling, and A. S. Salley.

Arrangement

The files are arranged alphabetically by subject or correspondent and each folder is organized chronologically. Early manuscript drafts of several chapters are located at the end of the series.

Series 12: Paul Quattlebaum, Horry County Families, 1948-1964

Physical Description: 1 Cubic Feet

Series Description

The Horry County Families Series primarily consists of obituary notices and genealogical information on families from Horry County, South Carolina. Quattlebaum recognized the importance of preserving genealogical information for future research. The material accumulated in this series was copied chiefly from the "Death Notices" page of the Charleston News and Courier. Also included in this series are manuscripts on several Horry County families compiled by professional genealogist Leonardo Andrea of Columbia, South Carolina. The original version of Quattlebaum's 1,925 page typescript is located in the Horry County Memorial Library in Conway.

Arrangement

The papers are arranged alphabetically by family name.

Series 13: Paul Quattlebaum, Senatorial Research Committee, 1956-1963

Physical Description: 0.5 Cubic Feet

Series Description

This series documents Paul Quattlebaum's research on the biographies of state senators from Horry County, South Carolina. This material was ultimately incorporated in Emily Bellinger Reynolds and Joan Reynolds Faunt, eds., Biographical Directory of the Senate of the State of South Carolina, 1776-1964 (Columbia: South Carolina Archives Department, 1964), compiled under the direction of the Senatorial Research Committee. The series consists of genealogical form-letter inquiries and correspondence, including numerous letters between Quattlebaum and the mother-daughter editorial team of Reynolds and Faunt.

Arrangement

The Senatorial Research Committee Series is arranged alphabetically by surname of each senator.

Series 14: Paul Quattlebaum, Richard Champion

box 57 folder 1

Physical Description: 1 volume(s)

Series Description

The Richard Champion Series consists of a bound, seventy-two page typescript compiled by Paul Quattlebaum in 1956. The volume is a scrapbook of material copied from various authors. It chronicles the career of Richard Champion (1743-1791) as a merchant, a manufacturer of porcelain, and a political activist. Champion, an English Quaker, created porcelain which compared favorably with that of Josiah Wedgwood. A staunch Whig, Champion emigrated to Camden, South Carolina in 1784 and later served as a delegate to the Constitutional Convention of 1790. Paul Quattlebaum compiled this manuscript at the behest of his cousin, Rev. W. Dan Quattlebaum of Pasadena, California, himself an ardent porcelain collector.

Series 15: Paul Quattlebaum Jr., German Immigration, 1972-1982

Series Description

Paul Quattlebaum, Jr. gathered a variety of research materials related to the settlement in South Carolina by German speaking immigrants as well as their accomplishments, community and religious establishments. It is uncertain whether any publication resulted from this research. Some material from his father's research on A Palatine Family in South Carolina is also included.

The papers consist of eight folders of primarily of photocopies and transcripts of documents, journal articles, portions of books, and research notes dating from 1729 – 1982. All the material prior to the mid twentieth century is either photocopied or transcribed. This series was accessioned as 95-93.

Series 16: Paul Quattlebaum Jr., Northeast Corner of South Carolina

Series Description

Paul Quattlebaum conducted research and created manuscript drafts titled "The Northeast Corner of South Carolina or Old Georgetown District" primarily during 1959. The project was discontinued after four chapters and apparently was never published.

The series consists of three folders: correspondence related to the natural history of Georgetown and Horry County, Native Americans, and early colonial settlements; a typed manuscript; and research notes. This series was accessioned as part of 04-94.

Series 17: Paul Quattlebaum Jr.

Biographical Note

Paul Quattlebaum, Jr. was born September 14, 1912 in Conway, South Carolina, the son of Paul and Sue Martin Quattlebaum. He attended public schools in Horry County graduating from Burroughs High School. He attended Clemson College and graduated in 1933 with a degree in electrical engineering. Moving to Charleston after graduation, Paul managed a retail appliance store until called to military service in 1942. He served in the US Army during World War II working with military ordinance at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds in Maryland. He continued to be in the Army Reserves retiring in 1961 with the rank of Captain. Paul Quattlebaum Jr. married Margaret Lillian Hass of Charleston in 1937 with whom he raised three daughters: Patricia Sue Quattlebaum, Margaret Quattlebaum Hahn, and the Rev. Laura Quattlebaum. After the death of Margaret Quattlebaum in 1975 Paul married Verbia Elane Arnold in 1976.

In 1947 Paul was a member of the South Carolina Education Survey Committee that prepared a landmark report on the condition and challenges of the public schools in the state. During the post war years, he was active in numerous fraternal, civic and business organizations including the Arion Society, the German Friendly Society, the St. Andrews Society, the Lions Club, the Harbor Club of Charleston and the Chamber of Commerce where he was chair of the military affairs committee during a period of rapid expansion of military bases in the Charleston area. In 1960 he sold his appliance business and became director of the South Carolina Field Office of the United States Department of Commerce for almost twenty years. He was a member of economic study and advisory committees created by Governors West and McNair.

That same year, he was elected by the General Assembly to become a member of the Board of Trustees of Clemson where he served on the Public Relations, Educational Policy, Student Affairs, Development, and Executive Committees. Upon the completion of his fifth term as an elected trustee on January 1, 1980, he was awarded the title Trustee Emeritus. Paul Quattlebaum continued to loyally serve Clemson University for over the next twenty years, attending Board meetings and University events for years until near his death on May 15, 2003.

Series Description

This series, 1933-2003, consists almost exclusively of material about Clemson University, primarily related to Paul Quattlebaum Jr.'s service on the Board of Trustees with the exception of a folder of newspaper clippings and one about his military service. Although he served on the Board from 1960-1980, there are few items from this period. The bulk of the Trustee papers are from the 1995-2001 when, as a Trustee Emeritus, he continued to participate in Board activities. Included is documentation of the Board's Educational Policy Committee and some Board meetings. As a member of the Board, Paul displayed a keen interest in the University Libraries, as well as research programs in the College of Engineering.
