• As of June 2011, Facebook has more than 674 million active users – more than 149 million users in the United States alone.

• According to the Nielsen Company, the average active social media user, logs in 19.2 times per month on Facebook, spending an average of 5 hours and 52 minutes on the site.

It is easy to buy a horse ...

- Facebook marketing can be cost effective but it requires a lot of time, effort and a few passionate communicators to maintain a dialogue with your audience.

- Without putting in the effort, your page will show your real interest in your audience.

- Don’t expect to get thousands of fans to your Facebook page within your first month, but set a realistic goal and try to make progress towards it every day.
Create a vanity URL

• The URL of your Facebook page is randomly generated until you reach a certain amount (currently 25) of fans, then Facebook lets you pick your own vanity URL.

• If you are the administrator of the page, go to www.facebook.com/username/ to create a username for your page.
Promote and make your website social

• Insert the Facebook image on your website home page and link it to your Facebook page.

• Use the Facebook Activity Feed plugin to show your audience what their friends are doing on your website through likes and comments.

• Link your Facebook page to Twitter.

• Announce your Facebook page to your web team. Clemson University and College departments have websites/directories that list all University related Facebook pages. In addition, share it with email lists, meeting rooms, email signatures, flyers for events, presentations, websites, wikipedia ...

• If you are addressing a live audience, encourage people to join your page via SMS. Facebook users can send a text message to 32665 (FBOOK) with the words “fan yourusername” OR “like yourusername” (without the quotes).
Samples
Invite

- Invite your Facebook friends to your page. You probably have your own friends on Facebook and odds are some of them are interested in the work you do. Send them a personal message inviting them to check out your organization’s Facebook page.

- Don’t ask everyone; just invite your friends who may truly be interested.

- Create and promote giveaways to people that comment to a certain post of you. Because they have to “like” your page to comment, giveaways are likely to increase your fan base.
Find possible friends

- Fbsearch.us is a quick and easy way to search for content on Facebook by key types, for example, posts, photos, people, pages, groups, and events. It returns only “public” results so you won’t see everything, but it’s a good starting point. http://www.fbsearch.us/
How often should we post?

- According to SocialBakers there really isn’t a magic number for the amount you should be posting.

- Posting less than 2 times per week is not enough to maintain a social connection with your audience.

- The average page should receive somewhere between 5-10 new posts per week.
Update regularly

• Keep your Facebook page updated. Don’t make the mistake of neglecting your Facebook page or homepage.

• Your page should be social - not just another avenue for press releases.

• You need to be passionate and willing to walk the extra mile for your audience.

• The content should be a quick read by your audience. Think of short, engaging and to the point posts. A reader needs to understand the gist of your content in 10 seconds or less.

• Keep the content fresh and don’t forget the viral nature of Facebook.

• Reply and pay attention to fans. If a fan asks a question, try to answer it as soon as possible.
Create engaging content

- Ask timely questions
- Ask yes or no questions
- Ask specific questions
- Ask edgy questions
- Ask true or false questions
- Ask questions about a photo
- Ask poll questions
- Ask fun questions
- Ask preference questions
- Ask who’s attending an event
- Ask fill in the blank questions
- Reply and pay attention
Status messages longer than 420 characters

- Find a photo you want to accompany your extremely long status update.

- Select your photo, you can write as much as you want!

- Share!
Provide exclusive content

• Give your audience a reason to ‘Like’ of your organization. Add content to your page for your fans that they cannot get anywhere else.

• Keep the content varied, fun, and interesting. Think about exclusive videos, bonus material, bloopers, podcasts, tips, gifts, discussion threads, coupon codes, etc.
Get your content shared more often

• Include numbers in your titles and status messages.

• Post on weekends as people tend to share more on the weekends.

• Believe it or not – but certain words get shared more. Good words are “why”, “most”, “world”, “how”, “health”, “bill”,...

• Write articles with a positive spin.

• Write in plain English – as the complexity of a post increases, the number of times it gets shared decreases.

• Include videos if possible.
Interact

• By becoming a fan of your page, your audience acknowledged your organization. Now it is your turn to show them that you care about them and their loyalty. Answer to their posts or at a minimum, “like” their posts.

• Ask fans to take interesting photos from their county. Have your fans upload these photos to your page. Interaction keeps people connected.

• Keep in mind, every time someone interacts on your page it may appear on that person’s Facebook feed, promoting your page to their friends.

• Empower your fans, rather than trying to marginalize, shove aside, or steam roll them with press releases or event announcements. Ask everyone to like your posts.
Tag photos

- If you host events, be sure to take plenty of photos, load the photos to your Facebook page and tag the people on the photos.

- Encourage fans to tag themselves.

- This, again, pushes that photo and the link to your page out into the walls of your fans and their friends.

Tag your page

• Use the @ tag. As long as you like your own Facebook page, you can “@ tag” your page on your own personal profile wall. Tag your Facebook page by writing a personal status update.

• If Facebook does not automatically link to a friend’s name or page name, start typing the “@” symbol and the first few letters of your fan page name, and it will appear from a drop-down menu to select. This makes it an easy link that your friends can choose to click.

• This also can be done when you post messages on other people's walls or fan pages. But keep in mind to not just spam other pages.
Have a call to action

• Every Facebook page should have an objective it wants the audience to complete whether it is ...

✓ buying a product
✓ signing up for a workshop
✓ signing up for a newsletter
✓ signing up to become an advocate
✓ making a gift
✓ volunteering their time
Track readership and learn

- Get statistics on your audience, demographics, page views, interactions and much more with the Insights tool for pages. See what works and go from there.
So what is the biggest secret?
Passion

• The “Chosen Social One” needs to have passion for the audience.

• Your organization needs to understand that Facebook should not be just another task on your list of duties.

• To be successful and social, it means for you to show passion for your audience every hour of the day, 313 days a year. It is like falling in love! Show your love! You would not just be in love from 9-5, Monday - Friday.

• While you don’t have to be in the office all of this time, you must be prepared for passionate “chatter” from all angles and all times.

• Don’t automate posts! It is like sending a robot to a networking event.

• Keep in mind, people that like your page are your friends and advocates.
