

R. Patrick Jenkins

Robert "Pat" Jenkins, a 1962 Clemson alumnus, was a U. S. Army veteran, prominent civil engineer and successful business entrepreneur. He believed wholeheartedly in giving back, helping others find the strength within themselves to accomplish their goals, and that life is an adventure. Because of his investment, Clemson students will forever benefit from his visionary philanthropy.

Robert Patrick Jenkins
1940 - 2012

R. PATRICK JENKINS

1940-2012

Provided unrestricted support for the colleges of engineering and science and business and behavioral science

Pat Jenkins '62 of Greer, South Carolina, believed in helping others accomplish their goals and in the idea that life is an adventure from which to learn. He was a U.S. Army veteran, a prominent civil engineer and a successful business entrepreneur. Because of the unrestricted endowments he established for business and behavioral science and engineering and science, Clemson students will forever benefit from his visionary philanthropy.