President Vernon called the Faculty Senate meeting to order at 2:32 pm.

1. APPROVAL OF MINUTES
   Minutes approved as distributed.

2. SPECIAL ORDERS
   No special order.

3. REPORT
   a. Robert H. Jones, Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs & Provost

   Dr. Jones presented several updates:

   1. Resource-Based Budget (RCM): Currently, the administration is working on how the budget looks. There will be two shadow years, FY2024 and FY2025. The administration is meeting with various teams to forecast different RBB models using the current budget. This exercise will find ways of doing things more efficiently.

   2. Open searches: The College of Education has an open search for the Dean of the college, and several candidates are under review. The Associate Provost and Dean of Undergraduate Studies Jean Bertrand. Inquiries to have students in search committees. Important in the search is that this position serve students with staff reporting. Therefore, student and staff voices are essential.

   Questions to the Provost.
   There was a question regarding the status of the use of Google suite on campus.
   The Provost will gather more information about the status of the Google suite use on campus and report back to the Senate.

   Another question that was asked was regarding the recent legislature request.
   The request is at an early stage, and our team is watching this and all the bills in the current legislative session.

d. President’s Report
   “What a special day it is today. Not only is it Valentine’s Day, but it is the Class of ’39 Award for Excellence Unveiling Ceremony. This makes me think of the outpouring of love and dedication that each of our nominees, but especially our winner, Dr. Brian Powell, has for our institution, our community and beyond. It is a wonderful time to celebrate and fellowship with our colleagues.
   As my term as President winds down, I have had countless people ask me “What’s Next?”, “Did you like it”, “Would you do it again?” and many other similar questions. As we move into new business you will hear a call for Faculty Senate Officer nominations, so I thought it appropriate to briefly answer some of these questions publicly. First, the “What’s Next?”. Well, honestly, I will return to my full-time faculty role as a teacher, a researcher, and a knowledge disseminator into my community. It’s the role I cherish the most and am arguably the best at doing. It’s the reason I went into academia as a career choice. Will I continue in a leadership role elsewhere on campus? Yes, I feel certain I will. My love of all things curriculum-related and my propensity to volunteer for countless committees point towards my continued involvement in some capacity. But being the Faculty Senate President does change you. It makes you more acutely aware of behind-the-scenes decision making that happen daily. It illuminates the struggles that we face globally on campus, in the state and in higher education in general. It makes you appreciate our role as faculty and the impact we make each day. It makes you proud to call each fellow faculty a colleague. So that leads me to the “Did you like it”. Of course, I did! It was a daunting task, and one that I doubted I could do from day one, but in the end, it was exhilarating, empowering, and humbling all at the same time. So clearly, the “Would you do it again?” is also an easy question. A resounding yes, even though I may or may not be counting down the days until I get to pass the gavel off to Dave Blakesley, I would 100% do this again. The people I met, the roles I unknowingly assumed, and the impacts I serendipitously made proved this year to be one of personal growth and pride.

So, to anyone thinking about Faculty Senate leadership…. My two words of advice are… do it. Take that leap of faith. Put aside the nay sayers, the ones that say you don’t have tenure yet, or that it is too much work, or your service is better somewhere else. Being involved as committee chairs and as an officer has been one of the most profound service roles I have had. Beyond chairing committees in my professional society, hosting conferences, and other university-committee roles, these Senate roles have been meaningful to me. I encourage you to reach out if you are interested and have questions. I encourage you to run for office. The Faculty Senate at Clemson University shares a strong history of relationship building and shared governance not enjoyed at other institutions. I know, I’ve asked others, they are jealous of what we have here. I hope this relationship continues to be enjoyed and respected for years to come, and I hope that each of you can share a similar story with your colleagues and encourage them to get involved in Senate. Our voice actually matters. In my first Presidential Report at the beginning of my term, I encouraged you to use that voice, and I say to you well done. You have done good work, and for that I thank you.”

POLICY COMMITTEE REPORT
Standing Agenda Items 202106, 202107 & 202115: Faculty Senate Representation

The Policy Committee has considered this matter under the charge of general university policy review, faculty professional ethics; the appointment, tenure, and promotion of faculty, and faculty participation in university governance and submits this report for consideration by the Faculty Senate.

Background

These agenda items were committed to the Policy Committee by Faculty Senate President Thompson Mefford during a regular meeting of the Executive Committee in 2021. Faculty Senate President Kristine Vernon re-committed the matters during a regular meeting of the Executive Committee in April 2022. This consideration originated from action items and goals in the Faculty Senate’s Strategic Plan for Inclusive Excellence to increase the representation of departments and faculty in the University’s policy making assembly, the Faculty Senate.

The Policy Committee reviewed past reports including BR 202001, PCR 202001, PCR 201901, PCR 202112, and WCR 202223. Additionally, the Policy Committee has taken into consideration recent reports from the Convention of the Delegates including CODR 202101. This report includes considerations of three agenda items (202107, 202115, and 202106) regarding the membership constraints and apportionment of the Faculty Senate. The committee submits this report on all three standing agenda items.

The 2020 background report provided a summary of alternative apportionment ratios, while agenda item 202001 analyzed the reapportionment because of small allocation to colleges, specifically Education and Libraries. Recent reports from the Faculty Senate and the strategic goal of membership among the Association of American Universities (AAU) bears on this committee’s reconsideration of reapportionment to not only consider broadening representation to specific departments, but also to include Special Faculty ranks as eligible members. The peer group from previous discussions was limited to institutions designated as land grant institutions in accordance with the definitions of the Morrill Acts of 1862 and 1890 and with the Carnegie Classification™ designation of R1 “Doctoral Universities – Highest Research Activity”. An additional criterion was added to limit institutions to those with enrollment within 10% of Clemson University’s total student enrollment (25,822). These criteria established seven institutions in the sample: University of Delaware, Auburn University, Kansas State University, University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Clemson University, University of Arkansas, and Oklahoma State University-Main Campus.¹

This aspirational peer group has been modified to reflect the additional criteria of membership in the AAU and includes 12 institutions: Michigan State University; Purdue University; Rutgers University, New Brunswick; Texas A&M University; The Ohio State University; The Pennsylvania State University; The University of Arizona; University of Florida; University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign; University of Maryland, College Park; University of Minnesota, Twin Cities; and University of Missouri, Columbia. Summaries of each institution’s policies are appended to this report.

The analysis included determining for each institution:
- The number of eligible faculty
- Number of representative Senators
- Ratio of senators to faculty (apportionment ratio)
- Special faculty eligible for representation
- Combined representative assembly (staff, students, administrators, and faculty)
- Level of represented unit

Only two of the 12 institutions (Purdue and Ohio State) in the peer group exclude non-tenure track faculty from service in the faculty assembly. Half of the assemblies (six) are combined shared governance entities, meaning they include staff, students, and administrators. Three are classified as limited combined assemblies, meaning they include voting members from across employment classifications (students, administrators and staff), but at a much smaller ratio. The other four assemblies are comprised of only faculty. Eight of the 12 institutions’ assemblies in the peer group are apportioned by college (or equivalent academic units reporting to a Dean). The data is visualized in table 1 below.

Discussion

The committee considered the agenda item by dividing the topic of representation into three parts:
1. The definition of faculty;
2. Apportioning the Faculty Senate; and
3. The effects of change.

Defining the Faculty

American Association of University Professors (AAUP)

“The faculty has primary responsibility for such fundamental areas as curriculum, subject matter and methods of instruction, research, faculty status, and those aspects of student life which relate to the educational process.”

² Number of Senators and Faculty Senate Ratios were computed according to the institution’s membership requirements
³ Only tenure track faculty are eligible
⁴ Clinical faculty are eligible
⁵ Faculty can be granted eligibility by the college faculty “Curricular and other academic decisions benefit from the participation of all faculty, especially those who teach core courses. Governance responsibilities should be shared among all faculty at an institution, including those appointed to less-than-full-time positions.”

“In some AAUP policy documents, ambiguity results from a tendency to treat the concept of “faculty” as if its definition were self-evident. For example, the Statement on Government’s assertion that “[f]aculty representatives should be selected by the faculty according to procedures determined by the faculty” begs the question of who the faculty are. Does a system in which only tenured or tenure-track faculty can decide upon election procedures that apply only to tenured or tenure-track faculty meet the standard of fairness?

Institutional policies should define as “faculty” and include in governance bodies at all levels individuals whose appointments consist primarily of teaching or research activities conducted at a professional level. These include (1) tenured faculty, (2) tenure-track faculty, (3) full- and part-time non-tenure-track teachers and researchers, (4) graduate-student employees and postdoctoral fellows who are primarily teachers or researchers, and (5) librarians who participate substantially in the process of teaching or research. Those individuals whose primary duties are administrative should not be defined as faculty.

While reserving a specified number of seats for contingent faculty may be adopted as a transitional mechanism to ensure at least some contingent faculty representation in institutional governance bodies, ideally there should be no minimum or maximum number of seats reserved in institutional governance bodies where representation of contingent faculty is appropriate, as described elsewhere in this report.

All members of the faculty, defined on the basis of their primary function as teachers or researchers and assuming that they meet any time-in-service requirements, should be eligible to vote in all elections for institutional governance bodies on the basis of one person, one vote.”

Clemson University – from The Constitution of the Faculty of Clemson University
“The Faculty of Clemson University consists of the President; Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs and Provost; other administrators with faculty rank; faculty with regular appointments as Professor, Associate Professor,

Assistant Professor, or Instructor; Librarians; Emeritus Faculty; and such other individuals as the faculty may duly elect. A petition for the election to membership in the Faculty of any person who is not automatically a member must be submitted to the Faculty Senate and referred by that body, with its recommendation, to the faculty for action at the next regular meeting of the faculty. Election to membership shall be by simple majority vote of the members present.”

“Any member of the Faculty may be eligible for membership on the Faculty Senate, except department chairs, school directors, deans, the Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs and Provost, vice Provosts, vice presidents, the president, and others with primarily administrative duties.”

The Constitution limits shared governance participation by narrowly defining faculty as tenured and tenure track (TT). The most obvious solution to reaffirm Clemson University’s commitment to the principles outlined by the AAUP, as recommended by the Convention of the Delegates and the Welfare Committee, is to amend the definition by: including additional eligible faculty titles, redefining faculty by percentage of employment and primary function (i.e. full time instructional/research/clinical appointment), or defining faculty as TT and Non-TT and making both eligible for membership. The committee concurs with the Welfare Committee and the Convention of the Delegates regarding the inclusion of Special Faculty as members of the constitutionally defined faculty.

To that end the Policy Committee recommends defining the faculty as tenured and tenure-track faculty and librarians and non-tenure track faculty with the primary responsibility of teaching, research, and service or any combination thereof except faculty with the adjunct, visiting or temporary rank modifiers and post-doctoral researchers.

The committee discussed a combined Senate and finds that such a concept, while intriguing because of the number of peer aspirational institutions that have one, is beyond the scope of the charges from the three agenda items. Additionally, the committee considered the concept exercised at some peer aspirational institutions where academic administrators serve as members of the primary shared governance assembly, but also found that this topic was beyond the scope of this agenda item as well. However, academic administrators, according to the AAUP, bear some rights and responsibilities in shared governance so it may be worth discussion by the Faculty Senate in the future.

10 The Constitution of the Faculty of Clemson University Article II§2
Defining the Apportionment
The Committee was charged with considering ways to increase departmental representation within the Faculty Senate. This consideration, combined with the recommendation above to increase the constitutional eligibility of members of the faculty, highlight the inadequacy of the membership cap on the Faculty Senate. For decades, 35 members have comprised the membership of the Faculty Senate; when the number of eligible faculty was several hundred and even now as we consider expanding the constitutional faculty to near 1500. The basis of the Faculty Senate’s representation is proportional to the number of faculty in each college, so it is logical to suggest that the representation should increase with the size of the faculty. In fact, aspirational peer AAU institutions have larger faculty assemblies as detailed in the background section. Even in prior background reports (LGR1 peer group), Clemson University’s Faculty Senate is among the smallest representative bodies.

Apportionment is the process of assigning representation. Apportionment discussions must include a debate concerning equal (or fixed) versus proportional representation. For this report, equal representation sets one representative for a defined number of constituent faculty (i.e. 1 fixed seat for every 25 faculty). Proportional representation is based on the total number of constituents against a defined number of representatives (Clemson University’s current system).

Clemson University’s Faculty Senate is a capped proportional system. The Constitution indicates:
“there shall be thirty-five members of the Faculty Senate. Emeritus faculty are excluded from the Faculty count for the purpose of Senate seat allocation. Senate seats shall be allocated according to the ratio of the number of members of the Faculty in a college to the total number of members of the Faculty in the university. Each college shall have as many seats as are in the nearest whole number when its ratio is multiplied by thirty-five, provided each college has at least one representative. For the purposes of this calculation, the Library is considered a college.
If the total number of seats allocated thus far is less than thirty-five, the remaining seats are allocated to the colleges with the larger fractions until there is a total of thirty-five members. If this formula produces an exact tie for a seat, each college involved shall be awarded a seat.”

The Policy Committee considered a number of different approaches to defining the apportionment ratio that achieves high representation across departments while maintaining proportional representation at the college level. This discussion included apportionment mechanisms utilized by peer aspirational AAU institutions. Ultimately, the committee opted to avoid complicating the apportionment process and recommends a simple mechanism such that each college is apportioned:

11 The Constitution of the Faculty of Clemson University Art.II§2
• One seat for each academic unit; and
• One seat for every 40 members of eligible faculty.

Based on January faculty counts, such an apportionment would result in the seat allocation indicated in Table 2. This apportionment includes the recommended changes to eligible faculty. The 37 proportional seats (based on 1 for each 40 faculty) is close enough to the current fixed number of senators (35) to provide a comparison of apportionment ratios before and after the recommended changes. Currently the Faculty Senate’s apportionment ratio with 1,035 faculty and 35 senators is .034. The recommended changes would increase the eligible faculty to 1,465 and increase the apportionment ratio to .075. This apportionment ratio falls into the higher end of the representation spectrum of the aspirational peer AAU institutions examined by this report (table 1).

The final language will be dependent on the Policy Committee’s definition of the academic unit called “department” in this report. The Constitution defines a department as “a discipline-specific, self-governing unit within a school or college”\(^\text{12}\). The committee has identified two issues that are related to this definition:

1. The definition of “discipline-specific” is ambiguous to an extent such that multiple related or non-related disciplines may be found in a single academic department or school across the institution and may include the interpretation that an academic department must only include one discipline.

Clarifying the definition of “department” as an academic unit is a current agenda item for this committee and the discussion of the topic does not fall within the charge of this agenda item. However, the charge specifies defining academic units within the Faculty

\(^{12}\) The Constitution of the Faculty of Clemson University, Preamble Manually. Additionally, the formation of academic “schools” because of departmental merger or multi-disciplinary departments confounds this issue further.

2. The definition falls under the Preamble of the Constitution

The committee discussed multiple schools of thought where Preambles to governing documents are concerned. First is the idea that the Preamble is not an official article of the constitution, thus not legally binding, as the Preamble serves as guidance or introduction. This conflicts with the fact that “department” is not defined elsewhere in the Constitution, yet its definition may be necessary for implementation of the recommended changes.

These issues are complicated with the second phrase, “self-governing unit within a school or college”, when considering the labels used to describe academic units such as academic units titled “school” without self-governing departments. The Board of Trustees very clearly gives the institution the authority to organize into collegiate faculties and such provisions are found in the Constitution in Article III. For simplicity, the Committee will maintain the college-centric theme of the Constitution by establishing that “self-governing academic unit” will be the basis of recognizing a represented academic unit. At this time, the committee does not find sufficient cause to further define academic units contained within “Colleges” in the Constitution.

The Policy Committee recommends each college is allocated one seat for every represented academic unit and 1 seat for every 40 eligible faculty in that college.

Effects

The committee discussed the ramifications of each of the changes. The Constitution references “faculty” as members of the general faculty, the Faculty Senate, the Grievance Board, and the collegiate faculty.

The Faculty Senate must consider the instances of “regular faculty” in the Faculty Manual, but this is beyond the scope of this agenda item and the policies contained in the Faculty Manual concerning “regular faculty” are not impacted by any proposed change. Coincidentally, the Faculty Senate approved, during the regular meeting in December 2022, the commitment of Standing Agenda Item 202209 to the Policy Committee to address the subject of “regular faculty” in the Faculty Manual.

General Faculty

The committee finds there is no negative impact to expanding the membership of the general faculty other than a higher physical number of faculty to consider and approve constitutional amendments. The size of the General Faculty assembly would increase to include the recommended faculty; however, the quorum requirements for regular business would remain unchanged.
Faculty Senate
The committee finds that increasing the size of the Faculty Senate would:

- Increase senate committee size which would increase each committee’s capacity to investigate and report of agenda items within their constitutional charges. Additionally, the increase in total capacity would allow for greater flexibility when considering temporary committees to consider additional items. Members of temporary committees are majority senators and the increase in capacity would enable standing committees to still have adequate capacity to complete their agenda items even after contributing members to temporary committees.
- Provide leadership opportunities for an increased number of faculty of all ranks.
- Provide more intercollegiate interaction and collaboration.
- Result in the redundancy of “alternate” Senators.
- Increase the pool of members eligible for election to the University Grievance Board considering that constitutional eligibility is based on “tenured regular faculty” that shall be “members, alternates, or former members of the Faculty Senate”.

Conversely:
- The potential for outsized representation of special faculty representatives on the Faculty Senate.
- The increase in the number of Faculty Senators would naturally increase the size of the standing committees from approximately 7 to 11. The additional faculty may place a burden on committee chairs in managing committee business.

Collegiate Faculty
The committee finds that expanding the definition of faculty would impact the definition of faculty in the colleges. There is no consistent definition of membership in the “collegiate faculty” across the colleges’ bylaws resulting in varying degrees of permissive participation by “special faculty” in shared governance at that level. This also affects the provisions at the departmental level. Since the Constitution is the highest governing document, changes to the definition would necessitate changes to college bylaws to conform in granting “special faculty” membership rights in the faculty of each college. However, any change to the Constitution, once approved, would take effect immediately and conflicting collegiate policies would not supersede the Constitution. Simply put, anyone granted faculty status in the Constitution would have the rights and responsibilities thereof regardless of what the collegiate bylaws may indicate. The Faculty Manual, collegiate and departmental bylaws would have to be made explicit in which shared governance functions non-tenure track faculty can and cannot participate in, maintaining a close relationship with the principles of shared governance of the AAUP. In the interim, the Faculty Manual currently delineates between tenured, tenure-track and non-tenure track faculty with the adjectives “regular” and “special” and does not inherently conflict with the Constitution.

The Constitution does limit membership on the Curriculum Committees, indicating that, “The Undergraduate Curriculum Committee shall be comprised of the Dean of

13 The Constitution of the Faculty of Clemson University Art. II§8
Undergraduate Studies or other members of the Provost’s staff designated by the Provost as non-voting Chairperson, plus two representatives of the undergraduate curriculum committees of the several colleges” and “The curriculum committees shall review all curricular proposals in their respective areas of jurisdiction that emanate from the several collegiate faculties”. The membership constraint on the various curriculum committees is grounded in the definition of constitutional faculty. Currently, curriculum committee membership is limited to tenured and tenure track faculty because of the current definition of faculty in the Constitution, which defines the membership of the collegiate faculty. “Special Faculty” would now be included and, per the Constitution, be counted as members of the collegiate faculty, entitling them to membership on the various curriculum committees. This would cause a conflict with the Faculty Manual that indicates “Voting membership of college curriculum committees is limited to regular faculty.” and defining regular faculty as tenured and tenure track. The Policy Committee discussed this impact by engaging the typical arguments in support and opposition of contingent, contract, or instructional faculty recommending, reviewing, and approving curricular agenda items. The Policy Committee is satisfied that because these positions are elected, departments and colleges can self-determine who they feel is best suited to represent their academic unit in curricular discussions and placing a limit at the university level is extraneous.

Grievance Board
The Grievance Board has multiple constraints set by the Constitution, including the requirement that members “must be tenured regular faculty at the time of their election, and shall be members, alternates, or former members of the Faculty Senate.” The committee finds that addressing the membership of the Grievance Board is not within the scope of these agenda items but does find that the membership would be unaffected by this proposal. However as indicated above, the eligible pool of former members of the Faculty Senate may increase as the colleges would be allocated more seats each year.

Findings

The committee finds that the constitutional definition of faculty is limiting and in contradiction to the principles of shared governance as recommended by the AAUP and exercised by AAU aspirational peer institutions.

The committee finds the current definition of faculty unduly constrains Faculty Senate membership, effectively limiting eligibility to tenure track faculty, and inadequately defines the relationship of certain classes of faculty to shared governance at this institution.

15 The Constitution of the Faculty of Clemson University Art.IV§3
16 Clemson University Faculty Manual, Chapter IX§K3f (p. 132)
17 The Constitution of the Faculty of Clemson University Art.II§8
The committee finds that the current fixed apportionment ratio is insufficient, considering the growth of the faculty since the Faculty Senate’s inception, for representation across departments.

Recommendations

Based on the discussion and findings indicated above, the Policy Committee recommends that the Constitution of the Faculty of Clemson University is amended to:

1. Define the constitutional faculty as tenured and tenure-track faculty and librarians and non-tenure track faculty with the primary responsibility of teaching, research, and service or any combination thereof except faculty with the adjunct, visiting or temporary rank modifiers and post-doctoral researchers.

2. Amend the current Faculty Senate membership eligibility to include tenured and tenure-track faculty and librarians and non-tenure track faculty with the primary responsibility of teaching, research, and service or any combination thereof with the exception of faculty appointed with the academic rank modifiers of “adjunct, visiting or temporary” and post-doctoral researchers.

3. Allocate to each college 1 seat for every represented academic unit within a college and 1 seat for every 40 eligible faculty in that college.

The Policy Committee will draft a resolution to amend the Constitution of the Faculty of Clemson University upon acceptance of these recommendations by the Faculty Senate.

The Senate is composed of 104 members.

The representation of the Senate is apportioned as follows:
The President of the University.
The Chief Academic Officer and the Chief Fiscal Officer of the University.
The Chairperson and Vice Chairperson of the Senate.

Three members elected by and representing the faculties of the regional campuses: one each from Purdue Northwest, Purdue Fort Wayne, and Indiana University–Purdue University Indianapolis.

One undergraduate student member selected annually by the Purdue Student Government (PSG) and one graduate student member selected annually by the Purdue Graduate Student Government (PGSG), with terms of office to begin on June 1.

The remaining ninety-four members are apportioned among the faculty units according to the number of faculty members attached to the respective faculty unit. This includes those the President assigns to participate in faculty government procedures, with the provision that no faculty unit has fewer than two members. Where a Dean is administratively responsible for more than one school, the faculties of these schools are considered a single faculty unit.

Between six and sixteen designated Advisors to the Senate are accorded full floor privileges but not the vote. The Advisors are members of the administrative staff appointed to the Senate by virtue of their positions. One of these is the Secretary of Faculties, who acts as Secretary to the Senate. Advisors may serve as members of Senate committees.

The Senate recommends the Advisors’ Senate and committee assignments for a three-year term to begin the following academic year. When vacancies occur, the Nominating Committee consults with the chairpersons of the Senate Standing Committees and then, at the second regular meeting of the Senate in the spring, proposes to the Senate a slate of Advisors and their committee assignments. The Senate may recommend that Advisors serve successive terms.

An immediate past Chairperson of the Senate who has not been elected to a new Senate term serves as an ex officio member of the Senate, with full floor privileges but not the vote.

Only members of the voting faculty with professorial rank (tenured, tenure-track, and clinical faculty) are eligible for election to the Senate. Deans, Associate Deans, and Assistant Deans may not serve as Senators.

Elected Members who shall be apportioned among the academic units in proportion to the number of faculty members in each unit, except that no unit is to have fewer than two senate seats, and no unit is to have more than twenty-five seats (one-sixth of the total number of seats). Apportionment shall be determined as follows:

Determine the percentage of faculty members in each unit by dividing the number of faculty members in that unit by the total number of faculty members. Multiply that fraction times the total number of seats in the Senate (150) and round to determine the number of seats each unit is proportionally entitled to. In rounding, standard conventions should be applied, so fractions of .5 or more are rounded up, and fractions less than .5 are rounded down. If any unit receives more than one-sixth (25) of the total seats available in the Senate, that unit is assigned 25 seats. If any unit receives fewer than two seats in step one, that unit is assigned two seats. If the total number of seats assigned in steps 1-3 is less than 150, determine the total number of faculty members in the units which have not been assigned their number of seats in Steps 2 and 3, and determine the remaining number of seats to be assigned. Determine the proportionate share of each of these units by dividing the number of faculty members in that unit by the number from step 4. Multiply that fraction times the number of seats remaining to be assigned after step 3 and round to determine the number of seats each unit is proportionally entitled to, as in Step 1. If any unit would be assigned more than 25 seats, then it is assigned 25 seats and if any unit would be assigned fewer than 2 seats, it is assigned 2 seats. Steps 4 and 5 are now repeated with the additional units removed. If, owing to the necessary rounding-off procedure, more or less than 150 seats have been awarded in the previous steps, adjust as follows. If more, reduce the number by subtracting one seat from as many units receiving seats through the rounding-off process as necessary, beginning with the smallest fraction that had led to an additional seat, until the total number of seats assigned is 150. If less, increase the number by adding one seat from as many units receiving seats through the rounding-off process as necessary, beginning with the largest fraction that had not led to an additional seat, until the total number of seats assigned is 150.

Only faculty as defined in Article III, Section 1, of this Constitution are eligible to be counted in determining the proportional representation of Academic Units within the Faculty Senate, to be elected to the Faculty Senate, and to vote for members of the Faculty Senate. A Faculty Council shall be composed of faculty members who shall be elected by the several divisional faculties as hereinafter provided. The Faculty Council shall have certain delegated authority to act on behalf of the General Faculty (Section 310.010.C.3.c of these Bylaws). In addition, the Council, as a representative faculty voice, shall advise the chancellor and the UMC faculty on questions of UMC policy submitted by either to the Council, and may initiate recommendations concerning changes in the UMC policy for consideration and appropriate action by the chancellor or UMC faculty.

Academic Unit Selections: All colleges and schools that are headed by a dean who reports to the provost for academic affairs shall be entitled to voting representation. For the purposes of Academic Unit Selections MU Libraries will be collectively treated as a school entitled to voting representation.

In the event the number of full-time ranked faculty members changes to the point where the basic ratio would give less than 30 or more than 35 representatives, the Council by a finding recorded in its minutes shall adjust the ratio to produce not less than 30 and not more than 35 representatives.

Minimum Number of T/TT and NTT Representatives: The minimum number of T/TT faculty representatives on the Council shall be four, and the minimum number of NTT faculty representatives on Council shall be four. FACULTY SENATE RESOLUTION 202301

Policy Committee Approval: January 17, 2023
Faculty Senate Consideration: February 14, 2023
Faculty Senate Approval: March 14, 2023 (Proposed) General Faculty Approval: August 2023 (Proposed)
Board of Trustees Approval: October 2023 (Proposed)

Topic: “Amendment of Constitutional Faculty and Faculty Senate Apportionment”

Whereas, the Clemson University Board of Trustees makes provisions for faculty participation in planning, policymaking, and decision-making with regard to academic matters; and

Whereas, the University also provides for such participation in matters of general university policies including those which pertain to: academic freedom and responsibility; faculty professional ethics; the appointment, tenure, and promotion of faculty; and faculty participation in university governance; and

Whereas, the Convention of the Delegates Report 202101, accepted by the Faculty Senate Executive Committee on December 6, 2022, outlined the vast contributions of Special Faculty and recommended the Faculty Senate address representation of this class of faculty; and

Whereas, the Faculty Senate Welfare Committee Report 202223, adopted by the Faculty Senate on December 13, 2022, concluded and recommended an amendment to the Constitution of the Faculty of Clemson University to include within the membership of faculty all those faculty members who are engaged in teaching, research, and/or service; and

Whereas, the Faculty Senate Policy Committee Report 202107, adopted by the Faculty Senate on February 14, 2023, found that the constitutional definition of faculty to be limiting and in contradiction to the principles of shared governance as recommended by the AAUP and exercised by AAU aspirational peer intuitions; and

Whereas, in PCR 202107, the Policy Committee also found that the current definition of faculty unduly constrains Faculty Senate membership, effectively limiting eligibility to tenure track faculty, and inadequately defines the relationship of certain classes of faculty to shared governance at this institution; and
Whereas, in PCR 202107, the Policy Committee also found that the current fixed apportionment ratio for allocation of Faculty Senate representatives is insufficient, considering the growth of the faculty since the Faculty Senate’s inception and for representation across departments; and

Whereas, the Policy Committee concluded PCR 202107 with recommendations to amend the Constitution of the Faculty of Clemson University; it is therefore

Resolved, that the Faculty Senate proposes to the faculty the following amendments, in accordance with the recommendations outlined by the Faculty Senate Policy Committee, to the Constitution of the Faculty of Clemson University:

1. Art.1§1: Strike the sentence, “The Faculty of Clemson University consists of the President; Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs and Provost; other administrators with faculty rank; faculty with regular appointments as Professor, Associate Professor, Assistant Professor, or Instructor; Librarians; Emeritus Faculty; and such other individuals as the faculty may duly elect.” and replace with the sentence, “The Faculty of Clemson University consists of the President; Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs and Provost; other administrators with faculty rank; tenured and tenure-track faculty and librarians; Emeritus Faculty; non-tenure track faculty with the primary responsibility of teaching, research, and service or any combination thereof; and such other individuals as the faculty may duly elect. Faculty with the adjunct, visiting or temporary rank modifiers and post-doctoral researchers are not eligible for automatic membership.”

2. Art.2§2: Strike the sixth (6th) paragraph containing the words, “Each college, except the Library, shall elect two alternates on a yearly basis; the Library shall elect one. Alternates may twice succeed themselves. An alternate shall have the status of a full member at any Senate meeting attended in place of a regular member.”

3. Art.2§2: Strike the eighth (8th) paragraph and replace with the paragraph, “Each college shall have as many seats as there are represented academic units and one seat for every 40 eligible faculty members appointed in the college. For the purposes of this calculation: the Library is considered a college; Emeritus faculty are excluded from the faculty count; a represented academic unit is a self-governing academic unit within a college.”

4. Art.2§2: Strike the ninth (9th) paragraph containing the words, “If the total number of seats allocated thus far is less than thirty-five, the remaining seats are allocated to the colleges with the larger fractions until there is a total of thirty-five members. If this formula produces an exact tie for a seat, each college involved shall be awarded a seat.”

These changes will be effective upon approval by the faculty of Clemson University and the Board of Trustees.

For the allocation of Senate seats and all other provisions of this article, the librarians shall be considered as a faculty representing a college.

Any member of the Faculty may be eligible for membership on the Faculty Senate, except department chairs, school directors, deans, the Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs and Provost, vice Provosts, vice presidents, the president, and others with primarily administrative duties.

Elections shall be held in March of each year, with terms of office to begin with the April meeting of the Senate. The election of members of the Faculty Senate shall be by secret ballot.

When a new college is officially established it shall be entitled to representation in the Faculty Senate as soon as an election can be held. A new college shall have one member in the Faculty Senate until the next allocation of seats. Whenever a new college is established, the next allocation of seats shall be obtained in the February following official establishment.

Vacancies created on the Faculty Senate for any cause shall be filled for the unexpired terms by supplementary elections within the colleges concerned as soon as such vacancies occur. Senators absent for the summer or for other temporary leaves such as sabbaticals, or appointed to temporary or interim administrative positions, shall request leaves of absence from the Senate and shall be replaced during their absences by substitutes elected by the Collegiate Faculty.

With the exception of those Senators who have served one year or less, members of the Faculty Senate may not succeed themselves.

Each college shall have as many seats as there are represented academic units and one seat for every 40 eligible faculty members appointed in the college. For the purposes of this calculation the Library is considered a college; Emeritus faculty are excluded from the count of eligible faculty; and a represented academic unit is a self-governing academic unit within a college.

The Faculty Senate President shall obtain a new allocation from the Chairperson of the Faculty during February of every odd-numbered year after the most recent allocation. This allocation shall be given to the dean of each college in time for the March election and shall control the numbers elected to the Faculty Senate at that time. If one or more members are gained, the collegiate faculty may designate new seats to have terms of less than three years in order to balance the terms within the college delegation. If one member is lost in the new allocation, one fewer member shall be elected to the Faculty Senate at that election. If the new allocation results in the loss of one or more members whose terms have not expired, the membership of the Senate shall be temporarily enlarged to accommodate the new allocation. New allocations shall be based on the number of members of the Faculty at the beginning of the fall semester.

Whereas, the Faculty Manual must be amended in order to effect recommendations 1 and 4 through 16 of PCR202202; it is

Resolved, that Chapter VIII, §E4 of the Clemson University Faculty Manual be amended to strike the following text:

“4. General Policies for Review of Academic Administrators

a. Overview

i. Every academic administrator reporting to the Provost, directly or indirectly, shall be evaluated in each year by the immediate supervisor.

ii. The purpose of the annual performance cycle is for the immediate supervisor (dean, associate provost, for example) and the academic administrator to mutually document goals and assignments, for the academic administrator to document performance and for the immediate supervisor to document her/his assessment of the annual performance.

(1) Such an evaluation is independent of reviews for the purpose of continued administrative appointment.

(2) Annual performance evaluations are also used, along with other data, in salary determination.

iii. University policy, adopted by the Board of Trustees in January 1981, modified in May 1998 and July 2016, establishes procedures for the review of academic administrators for continued appointment. Administrative officers of the University serve at the pleasure of their respective supervisors. Therefore, appointment to an administrative position, whether as department chair, director, dean, associate Provost, or Provost does not assure continuance in office for a specific period of time. These individuals will be subject to periodic review as outlined below in lieu of Post-Tenure Review. Each academic administrator will be subject to periodic review for the purpose of continued appointment at least every five years. The sections below describe any deviations from the interval of this review for each academic administrative position. Status as tenured or untenured faculty is not affected by the termination of an administrative appointment.

iv. The evaluations for the purpose of continued appointment shall employ the appropriate standard Clemson University form for the evaluation of administrators (provided in Appendix E). The standard Clemson University form will be distributed to all members of the constituent group as well as the peers of the academic administrator (those other academic administrators who report to the same supervisor). In all instances of an administrator’s review, a comment period of 21 calendar days during the academic year shall be provided. The completed forms shall be submitted to the chair of the evaluation committee.

v. The role of the review committee is to provide formative feedback for the improved performance of the academic administrator under review; and make recommendations regarding the continued appointment of the academic administrator to the supervisor. To fulfill these roles, the committee will elect its chair; determine a timeline for operations consistent with guidance from the supervisor of the academic administrator under review and the Faculty Manual; ensure that the evaluation form is distributed appropriately; and summarize the results of the evaluation forms.

vi. The chair of the evaluation committee will submit the summary, formative feedback, and recommendations to the immediate supervisor. The immediate supervisor, in consultation with their supervisor, will make a determination about the continued appointment. The conclusion will be communicated to the academic administrator under review and the constituent group by the immediate supervisor.

vii. Due to the varying sizes of different University constituent groups, different guidelines for selecting the membership of review committees are described here.

(1) The immediate supervisor of the academic administrator under review will determine the size and composition of the evaluation committee.

(2) The review committee structures shall not preclude any faculty or staff member in the constituent group from providing advice directly to the immediate supervisor.

b. Guidelines for selecting the membership of review committees for University-level academic administrators

i. The administrator under evaluation shall choose a member of the committee from the constituent group.

ii. The immediate supervisor shall choose a member of the committee from the constituent group.

iii. At least four regular faculty members shall be selected during a meeting of the Faculty Senate Advisory Committee. These members may be nominated by any faculty member.

iv. At least one special faculty member shall be selected during a meeting of the Faculty Senate Advisory Committee in consultation with members of the special faculty.

(1) If no special faculty representative can be elected, such as might occur if no person agrees to be nominated, the committee will consist of the other members described here.

v. The academic administrators reporting to the administrator under evaluation shall elect at least one of their members as their representative.

(1) If no administrator representative can be elected, such as might occur in a small unit or if no person agrees to be nominated, or if there are no academic administrators
vi. At least one staff member shall be selected by the Staff Senate.
(1) These members may be nominated by any faculty or staff member.
(2) If no staff representative can be selected, such as if no person agrees to be nominated, the committee will consist of the other members described here.

c. Guidelines for selecting the membership of review committees for academic administrators in academic colleges and those units within colleges

i. Other sections in this chapter contain additional details as needed.

ii. The administrator under evaluation shall choose a member of the committee from the constituent group.

iii. The immediate supervisor shall choose a member of the committee from the constituent group.

iv. Four regular faculty members shall be elected by vote of the regular faculty in the unit.

v. The special faculty of the academic unit (department, school, college, etc.) shall elect one of their number as their representative.
(1) If no special faculty representative can be elected, such as might occur in a small department or if no person agrees to be nominated, the committee will consist of the members described here.

vi. The academic administrators reporting to the administrator under evaluation shall elect at least one of their members as their representative.
(1) If no administrator representative can be elected, such as might occur in a small unit or if no person agrees to be nominated, or if there are no academic administrators reporting to the administrator under evaluation, the committee will consist of the other members described here.

iii. In all instances, the evaluation materials generated in the review process shall be treated with the strictest confidence with only those in the review hierarchy entitled to access.

iv. The accumulated administrator evaluation forms are sent to Records Management and saved for five years.

v. These evaluations should also be made available to the next evaluation committee.”; and it is

Report of the Committee on Freedom of Expression

The Committee on Freedom of Expression at the University of Chicago was appointed in July 2014 by President Robert J. Zimmer and Provost Eric D. Isaacs “in light of recent events nationwide that have tested institutional commitments to free and open discourse.” The Committee’s charge was to draft a statement “articulating the University’s overarching commitment to free, robust, and uninhibited debate and deliberation among all members of the University’s community.”

The Committee has carefully reviewed the University’s history, examined events at other institutions, and consulted a broad range of individuals both inside and outside the University. This statement reflects the long-standing and distinctive values of the University of Chicago and affirms the importance of maintaining and, indeed, celebrating those values for the future.

From its very founding, the University of Chicago has dedicated itself to the preservation and celebration of the freedom of expression as an essential element of the University’s culture. In 1902, in his address marking the University’s decennial, President William Rainey Harper declared that “the principle of complete freedom of speech on all subjects has from the beginning been regarded as fundamental in the University of Chicago” and that “this principle can neither now nor at any future time be called in question.”

Thirty years later, a student organization invited William Z. Foster, the Communist Party’s candidate for President, to lecture on campus. This triggered a storm of protest from critics both on and off campus. To those who condemned the University for allowing the event, President Robert M. Hutchins responded that “our students . . . should have freedom to discuss any problem that presents itself.” He insisted that the “cure” for ideas we oppose “lies through open discussion rather than through inhibition.” On a later occasion, Hutchins added that “free inquiry is indispensable to the good life, that universities exist for the sake of such inquiry, [and] that without it they cease to be universities.”

In 1968, at another time of great turmoil in universities, President Edward H. Levi, in his inaugural address, celebrated “those virtues which from the beginning and until now have characterized our institution.” Central to the values of the University of Chicago, Levi explained, is a profound commitment to “freedom of inquiry.” This freedom, he proclaimed, “is our inheritance.”

More recently, President Hanna Holborn Gray observed that “education should not be intended to make people comfortable, it is meant to make them think. Universities should be expected to provide the conditions within which hard thought, and therefore strong disagreement, independent judgment, and the questioning of stubborn assumptions, can flourish in an environment of the greatest freedom.”
The words of Harper, Hutchins, Levi, and Gray capture both the spirit and the promise of the University of Chicago. Because the University is committed to free and open inquiry in all matters, it guarantees all members of the University community the broadest possible latitude to speak, write, listen, challenge, and learn. Except insofar as limitations on that freedom are necessary to the functioning of the University, the University of Chicago fully respects and supports the freedom of all members of the University community “to discuss any problem that presents itself.”

Of course, the ideas of different members of the University community will often and quite naturally conflict. But it is not the proper role of the University to attempt to shield individuals from ideas and opinions they find unwelcome, disagreeable, or even deeply offensive. Although the University greatly values civility, and although all members of the University community share in the responsibility for maintaining a climate of mutual respect, concerns about civility and mutual respect can never be used as a justification for closing off discussion of ideas, however offensive or disagreeable those ideas may be to some members of our community.

The freedom to debate and discuss the merits of competing ideas does not, of course, mean that individuals may say whatever they wish, wherever they wish. The University may restrict expression that violates the law, that falsely defames a specific individual, that constitutes a genuine threat or harassment, that unjustifiably invades substantial privacy or confidentiality interests, or that is otherwise directly incompatible with the functioning of the University. In addition, the University may reasonably regulate the time, place, and manner of expression to ensure that it does not disrupt the ordinary activities of the University. But these are narrow exceptions to the general principle of freedom of expression, and it is vitally important that these exceptions never be used in a manner that is inconsistent with the University’s commitment to a completely free and open discussion of ideas.

In a word, the University’s fundamental commitment is to the principle that debate or deliberation may not be suppressed because the ideas put forth are thought by some or even by most members of the University community to be offensive, unwise, immoral, or wrong-headed. It is for the individual members of the University community, not for the University as an institution, to make those judgments for themselves, and to act on those judgments not by seeking to suppress speech, but by openly and vigorously contesting the ideas that they oppose. Indeed, fostering the ability of members of the University community to engage in such debate and deliberation in an effective and responsible manner is an essential part of the University’s educational mission.

As a corollary to the University’s commitment to protect and promote free expression, members of the University community must also act in conformity with the principle of free expression. Although members of the University community are free to criticize and contest the views expressed on campus, and to criticize and contest speakers who are invited to express their views on campus, they may not obstruct or otherwise interfere with the freedom of others to express views they reject or even loathe. To this end, the University has a solemn responsibility not only to promote a lively and fearless freedom of debate and deliberation, but also to protect that freedom when others attempt to restrict it.

As Robert M. Hutchins observed, without a vibrant commitment to free and open inquiry, a university ceases to be a university. The University of Chicago’s long-standing commitment to this principle lies at the very core of our University’s greatness. That is our inheritance, and it is our promise to the future.
