

Responsibilities of Other Research Team Members

Co-investigators, research assistants, students and all other research personnel involved with the research study are required to:

- Comply with all federal and state regulations and institutional policies related to the conduct of research;
- Complete IRB required training;
- Implement the study procedures as approved by the IRB;
- Ensure the integrity of the informed consent process by only presenting the research participants with approved informed consent documents;
- Take measures necessary to ensure adequate protection for the participants; and
- Promptly inform the principal investigator of all adverse events, research-related injuries, and/or unexpected problems affecting the rights or safety of research participants.

Researchers and administrators, at every level, are responsible for notifying the IRB office of any non-compliance with applicable federal, state, and institutional policies, whether or not they are involved with the research study.